

Travelport hosts travel executive summit

11 November 2015

The senior leadership event was attended by travel industry experts and thought leaders from travel agencies, airlines, corporate travel buyers and other industry leaders from North, Central, and South America.

Innovation; the explosive growth of airline ancillaries; trends in mobile technologies – all these and many other subjects affecting the $2.2 trillion GDP contribution of the travel and tourism industry within the Americas region^[1] were discussed last week at a Travelport (NYSE: TVPT) executive level summit in San Antonio, Texas. The senior leadership event was attended by travel industry experts and thought leaders from travel agencies, airlines, corporate travel buyers and other industry leaders from North, Central, and South America.

In addition to learning more about regional and global trends in the travel and tourism industry, attendees also had the opportunity to hear from Travelport on the company's latest innovations in hotel distribution, airline merchandising, and empowered selling through Travelport Smartpoint, Travelport's industry-leading desktop point of sale solution.

Conference attendees also heard from Mobile Travel Technologies Ltd. (MTT), the leading mobile travel platform and mobile technology provider for airlines and travel companies, which was acquired by Travelport in July this year. MTT provides an industry-leading mobile travel platform and product set that allows airlines, hotels, corporate travel management companies and travel agencies to engage with their customers through sophisticated, tailored mobile services including apps, mobile web and intelligent mobile messaging.

The Americas region is Travelport's largest, based on revenues. The Americas Region, consisting of the United States, Latin America, and Canada, comprised approximately 33% Q2 year-to-date 2015 total Travelport net revenue. And, during Travelport's recently reported third quarter financial results, Latin America and Canada experienced strong double-digit growth (21%).

“Bringing together travel industry executives at the summit gave everyone a great opportunity to learn and to discuss issues and technologies that are changing and redefining the travel industry,” said Scott Hyden, Travelport's Group Vice President and Managing Director Americas. “As the leading Travel Commerce Platform, Travelport believes gatherings like this reinforce the collaborative role we can play partnering with companies across the entire travel eco-system to help them achieve their own growth ambitions. The event was a great success and very well received by all those who attended.”
