

TraviAustria becomes Travelport Austria

5 October 2016

Travelport (NYSE:TVPT), a leading travel commerce platform, has today announced another important step in the continued integration of its Austrian distribution partner, TraviAustria. Travelport, which acquired the company approximately one year ago, has now renamed it 'Travelport Austria'. The move gives Travelport much more visibility and a stronger presence in the Austrian travel industry.

Travelport Austria's existing relationships with travel agencies, tour operators and suppliers in the country will remain unchanged and customers can rely on the high service levels that they have come to expect working with TraviAustria for over three decades. Additionally, customers will benefit further from the wider synergies that Travelport's business can offer, including the latest technological innovations in its point of sale solutions, payments and mobile divisions. CETS, the powerful leisure booking platform, which travel agencies in Austria, Switzerland and other countries currently work with, will also continue to be developed by Travelport Austria and will become 'Travelport CETS'.

Simon Ferguson, Travelport's Vice President & Managing Director, Northern Europe: "We are delighted to now be present in Austria, operating under our globally successful Travelport brand. We look forward to continuing our work with local travel agency partners and providing them with the state-of-the-art technology and innovative solutions they need to help drive their businesses forward. We also look forward to growing our own business in Austria."

Rudolf Mertl, Country Manager of Travelport Austria: "TraviAustria has achieved an excellent reputation in Austria as an innovative and reliable IT service provider and it's a great place from
